The Power of a Personal Healthcare Consultant

Caring for elderly relatives can be overwhelming. Managing illness, functional and cognitive issues, chronic disease, protection against viral epidemics and pandemics for a loved one, are each enough to consume a family caregiver. Having the power of a Personal Healthcare Consultant on your side helps ensure your aging loved ones receive the care they need, with the peace of mind you deserve.

Here are the top 3 reasons to hire a Personal Healthcare Consultant, also known as a Geriatric Care Manager:

1

Comprehensive Assessment

You do not want to miss critical resources when caring for the elderly. A Geriatric Care Manager has the experience and assessment tools to determine the family's needs, level of care and living situation that best suits your aging loved one.

2 Healthcare Experience

Elder care requires a keen eye to navigate today's complex healthcare system. A Geriatric Care Manager can successfully interact with a variety of medical professionals, provide crisis support, as well as keep track of all medical needs. Medical emergencies can arise at any time. A Geriatric Care Manager will provide support during these critical times by coordinating hospitalizations, managing transitions to rehabilitation or other locations and providing end of life support.

3 Supervised Care

Hiring an in-home health aid may become necessary for your elderly relative. A Geriatric Care Manager will coordinate with health aids, while also conducting in-home visits to ensure your loved one is receiving the highest quality care.

A Personal Healthcare Consultant is specially trained and certified to help find and manage the resources and support needed to make daily life easier, while ensuring the utmost care and a dignified life for your aging loved ones.
